

What's the course all about? The nationally recognised Construction Industry Training Board (CITB) Construction Skills Site Safety Plus accredited SMSTS training course is an essential part of modern day construction manager's safety training.

What will I learn? This course is designed for Site Managers, experienced supervisors and persons who are, or about to be, responsible for planning, organising, monitoring, controlling and administering groups of staff on construction sites.

It will help site managers and supervisors to manage health and safety on a single or multiple sites, in accordance with current legal provisions, and within the context of their management or supervisory role.

Exactly What Will I Do? The course covers:

- All relevant legislation and other aspects which affect safe working the building construction and civil engineering industries
- The need for risk assessment in the workplace
- Implementing necessary control measures
- Successful communication to sustain a health and safety culture amongst the workforce

It will help site managers, agents and supervisors to:

- Manage health and safety onsite in accordance with current legal provisions, and within the context of their management of the supervisory role
- Develop an understanding of responsibilities and accountability for site health, safety and welfare
- Recognise that a safe site can be efficient, economical and productive

Delegates will be required to complete 4 core exercises, a case study and an end of course examination.

Who should attend? Site Managers, experience supervisors and persons who are, or about to be, responsible for planning, organising, monitoring, controlling and administering groups of staff on construction sites
